

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A roach trap comprising: a rectangular tray for holding an adhesive and/or insect or rodent bait, the contiguous side walls of the tray having a contiguous overhanging lip; of the four side walls and corresponding lip portions, one of the lips has near its midpoint a protuberance depending upwardly therefrom, so that when the tray is turned over, the protuberance creates a space which allows an insect (or rodent) to reach the adhesive (and bait) provided in the tray.

